

Thierry

Senior Project Leader

(+41) 022 560 72 72
info@antaes.ch

ANTAES

Siège social - Geneva Business Center
2, Avenue des Morgines CH - 1213 Petit-Lancy

ANTAES

OFFER

Serious Game Project Management through Risk Management

Partnership for excellence

CONTEXT —

It is essential to take into account the risks involved in project management; yet, paradoxically, the risk management competence is often underutilized, limited, and sometimes even non-existent while conducting projects.

Strengthening the capacity of project teams to identify, measure, and mitigate risks helps to improve control over quality, cost, and time.

OUR OFFER —

We offer a personalized awareness seminar with scenarios adapted to the reality of our clients' projects. We adapt our scenarios and systems to the reality of the firm's projects for a better appropriation by the participants. Among others, the Serious Game approach addresses risk identification processes, the creation of reference systems, the implementation of mitigation actions, and monitoring. Participants are subjected to the stress involved in "operational" project risk management.

WHO IS IT FOR? —

The Serious Game approach is designed for project managers, project teams in the launch phase, and small and medium-sized enterprises that wish to improve their operational risk management processes within the scope of their portfolios and programs.

OUR CONTRIBUTION —

We have many years of solid experience in active pedagogy and project simulations. Our clients appreciate our instructive and lively approach. Overall, participants are highly satisfied with our simulations.

ILLUSTRATION

ANTAES Differentiation

Serious Games and simulations provide a concrete view of the concepts of project risk management, and help to develop an expert and more mature approach to these aspects of management.